The US version premiered on 23 September 2013, a month before the Israeli premiere. It was cancelled after its first season on CBS due to poor ratings. The Israeli version, Bnei Aruba, was presented to international buyers at MIPCOM in October 2013,[3][4] and in December 2013, BBC Four announced it had acquired the series.[1][5] BBC Four started showing it on 21 February 2015, with two episodes in tandem each Saturday night.[6] In January 2014, Canal+ acquired the Israeli series.[7][8][9] A DVD release followed. Due to the series success in Europe, a second season was produced and acquired by Canal+, who broadcast it in March & April 2016.[10] The series' first season was released on Netflix in multiple regions in September 2016 with the second season following in June 2017.[11] In February 2017, the second season was released in the UK as an exclusive download on BBC Store. In the UK, Arrow films released the first series on DVD in March 2015 and the second series in May 2017. In 2017, season 1 and 2 were shown together under the title of Die Geiseln on German channel RTL Crime. In India it has been remade into a web series titled Hostages. Soundtrack The soundtrack by Roy Nassee (of electronic music group Pick Right) and Alon Cohen was met with praise. The Arts Desk website described it as containing "threatening electro-metallic throb sounds which rarely let up".[12] The Movie Waffer said that the score "builds such incredible amounts of tension to run nicely with the developing plot. Just from the first episode the tension is piled on and the music does that a lot throughout. It seems to trickle away like a bad nightmare down the back of your neck, lifting the hairs up as the action is presented on screen. In general the music is great and it's the quick successive beats that get the heart racing".[13] EQ view noted that the action was underpinned by a "terrific score by Alon Cohen and Roy Nassee that features minimalist electronics and sinister percussion that ebbs and flows through high tension scenes with a persistent menacing drone".[12] The soundtrack has not been officially released but selections from both seasons are available on the artists respective websites.[14][15][16] Reception Critical reception Maariv said "you don't even notice the time pass and you're sitting with a dry throat and eyes glued to the screen. You're already booking the next episode and setting a reminder". Haaretz, another Israeli newspaper, said it "sets a new standard for Israeli TV".[17] In France, the series was also well-received by critics, with the newspaper L'Express describing it as "refined" and with a "stellar cast".[18] Awards Monte-Carlo Television Festival[19] Best International Drama Series Best Actress, Ayelet Zurer References ^ a b "BBC Four announces three brand-new drama acquisitions".
